REPORT

From South Jefferson Commercial Club.

Secretary Writes Of What Has Been Done During the Past Year.

The South Jefferson County Commercial Club was inaugurated by much exchange of windy ideas expressed by words of dual meaning and a postal card notification of the movable denizens of the 4th magisterial district, by and between the wide awake personages of Mr. H. W. Monroon, Kendrick Lewis and W. H. McCullough. The initiative meeting was held at the store of Mr. Ben K. Stewart. Dr. Dudley S. Reynolds made temporary chairman and gave as special cause of meeting a permanent organization, a completion of the Salt River bridge and establishing the "Lincoln Way." An organization permanent was completed with the officers now setting as chairman and secretary. The vital point was raised at once—where is there a suitable place to meet this store being too small. Mr. W. C. Kennedy, hearing of this dilemma, stepped in at once and offered his hall, Kennedy Hall, for a meeting place, thus obligating the people to his kindness, as well as stamping himself one of the leaders of the community.

While our beginning was a few members I am proud that this embryonic start has continued a good lead, and now we number, by actual newspaper computation, one hundred and fifty members, all working for the uplift of this section; and there should be, and is, a decided earnest of the club members until all the citizens of the district are numbered under the banner of the South Jefferson or some other commercial club.

A visit to Elizabethtown with banner "Lincoln Way" described thereon: a band of youthful musicians and members in such force and numbers as to capture and convince the good roads convention assembled there (Elizabethtown) that the Jefferson county delegation meant something, as one of our members facetiously though thoughtfully put it, in an afternoon speech, "we, the Jefferson County Commercial Club, were certainly IT and had things coming our way." We took the town peacefully and declared to the convention what the "Lincoln Way" was.

June 10th, a rousing picnic in a nearby woodland, donated by Mr. W. C. Kennedy for use for the day, where all that conformed to the best wants and wishes of the genus hand could be obtained.

In the way of feeding, as it was estimated, about 1,500 people in old Kentucky style and abundance were fed. The afternoon was given over to a feast of "reason and flow of soul" in that we—with Dr. Dudley S. Reynolds as toastmaster—had with us such speakers as Mayor Head, Col. Young, Judge Dearing, J. Meyers, Col. Funk, Senator Newcomb, Hon. Pendleton Beckley, Col. Wood, and others, made the welkin or woodland ring in an oratorical way of the needs and demands of our country.

The intentions of our club from its inception was to boost up our public servants to think we, the people, had rights to be respected, as regards street car lines and service, telephone service and prices, county commissioners, magistrates, road builders, etc.; the establishing of the "Lincoln Way" good roads, good schools and good drainage for this valley, in fact anything and everything for the uplift of the people of the 4th district, which every one knows is one of the best valleys on top side of God's green earth.

bers I address the words of our "leading men" that we must have something to eat, or perhaps, smoke, and in the words of our "humorous" members, else we will smoke hereafter, if we fail to do our duty here and now.

Expenditures: The total outlay of the club has been about $180, which just about balances the receipts.

I. P. MOREMEN, Secretary.

It Pays To Advertise in The Jeffersonian—Schools Close—Other News.

St. Matthews, May 13.—It seems we were mistaken about summer setting in—it's cold as Christmas this morning! Probably all the bad and herry winters have formed a combine, which will wind up the cold snaps for this season.

There has been a stormy time for several days in this vicinity—felled many large trees, one falling across the track of the electric line, delaying traffic for couple of hours. The blacksmith shop at St. Matthews was unroofed and is now decorated with tarpaulin covering.

Mr. Charles Commack and sister have moved from their home where they have lived many years, to Mr. Sam Lee's residence next to the parsonage at Beargrass.

Misses Cornelia and Ella Mae Lee, from Pewee Valley, spent the weekend with Mablee Rudy at her home near St. Matthews.

The death of Mr. Alfred Barie last week cast a gloom over the entire neighborhood. He was a man of much prominence and sterling qualities.

Springdale has housecleaned and whitewashed until it can properly be called the "spotless town." Really, it is surprising what we are able to tell the tale after such a battle with the dirt.

Our new blacksmith has arrived and the shop opened this morning. See how quickly one can obtain their desires, if advertised in The Jeffersonian! This gentleman is a Middle-town product, but I can't spell his name until I meet him and find the proper number of consonants to give the German accent.

The Buckeye school closes tonight with an entertainment of recitations, songs, and finally ice cream and cake, all of which can be enjoyed for the modest sum of twenty-five cents. The proceeds will be donated to the school fund for improvements.

Miss Sallie Ewing will close her school Tuesday afternoon with a picnic in the adjoining woods, one of the features being a fish pond of bonbons to be hooked out with pole and line. Anything with a mystery behind it delights children, as well as grown folks. All look forward to a good time. Miss Ewing has made a success of her work this year (as always) and her scholars' rapid advancement testify to her efficiency.

FANELLI BROS.

New Name of Jeffersonton Baseball Club—Uniforms Donated.

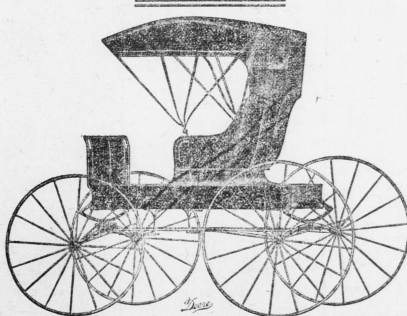

After this the Jeffersonton baseball club will be known as "Fanelli Brothers." There is a reason. Frank Fanelli, the hustling proprietor of one of Jeffersonton's leading stores, on Monday gave an order to have uniforms made for every member of the club at a cost of something like fifty dollars, and will present same to the club with his compliments. Of course, the boys think Fanelli is the "real thing" now, and will be known hereafter as "Fanelli Brothers."

The suits will probably arrive this week in time for the game next Sunday afternoon between the local team and Fehr's of Louisville. The game will be called at 3 o'clock in Jefferson Heights, and the public is invited. Our boys in their new uniforms will put up the game of their lives, and the Fehr team is composed of some of the best amateur players in the city.

BartoRoemlele is manager of Fanelli Brothers team, and other local players are Walter Jones, Walter Harris, Edwin Davis, Ben Stivers, John Finn, Jack Baker and others.

QUESTIONS
Of Vital Interest To Be Discussed

At Open Meeting of Commercial Club Tomorrow Night—Fire Engine, Light, Etc.
The meeting night of the Jeffersontown Commercial Club having been changed from Thursday night to Friday night, a meeting of the Club will be held tomorrow night at Bruce Hall at 8 o'clock. Since the re-organization of the Club no dues have been collected and every citizen of this part of the county has been recognized as a member when he was present at the meeting. It is the purpose of R. B. Smith, the president—like some politicians claim to do—to "let the people rule" and he has been carrying this program out to perfection. Every meeting has been open for every body and all present have been given an opportunity to do something.
A large crowd is expected tomorrow night, as many questions of vital importance to Jeffersontown and vicinity will come up for discussion.

Fire Protection.
The committee named to visit Middletown and witness the demonstration of the new fire engine at that place last Friday night will make its report, and it is very likely that steps will be taken to purchase one for Jeffersontown. Middletown and Anchorage have fire protection now, and it is up to the people of Jeffersontown to do something. At present the town is at the mercy of the good Lord in case of fire. Capt. Strauss, of the Anchorage department, informed The Jeffersonian that although they had bought their engine only a few months ago, three or four handsome houses had already been saved from burning down.
Everybody in this community should be, and doubtless is, interested in this important question, as everybody here will be benefited in the event an engine is purchased. Therefore let everybody attend the open meeting tomorrow night.

Electric Lights.
Another question that is of equal importance to the citizens of this community is electric lights, and after several weeks' work this proposition will likely be settled at the meeting tomorrow night.
Between seventy and eighty contracts and many "promises" have been secured for the Louisville Lighting Company by the committee, and it is believed that something will be done tomorrow to close the deal—either stop working on the project or get an answer from the Lighting Company. It is very important that as many people as possible be present.

Here It Is—In Writing.
To those who have been scared of the expense of wiring their houses for electric lights, we ask to read the following card from Mr. Harry C. Knauber, of Jeffersontown:
"Editor The Jeffersonian:
You may state in your paper that I shall be pleased to furnish wire and do the work of wiring houses in Jeffersontown for $1.75, per light. Wire and material guaranteed to be first-class and stand inspection."
H. C. KNAUBER."

Better Street Car Service.
It is reported that an effort is being made to secure better service on the Jeffersontown interurban electric line and that the needs of this community along that line will be discussed tomorrow night. Among the things needed, it is said, are half hour cars in the early morning and in the late evening when working men are going to and coming from their places of business; and an earlier morning car and better service at the waiting room.
The questions that will come up tomorrow night are many and will surely interest every citizen of this locality. A record breaking crowd should be present tomorrow night at Bruce Hall at 8 o'clock.

His Mistake.
"Is this a commission house?" asked the tall man.
"Yes, sir," said the commission merchant. "What can we do for you?"
"Well, if you sell commissions I'd like to buy one, if they're not too dear, for my son. I want a lieutenant's commission in the army, for my son wants to be a soldier, and he's too lazy to go to West Point."
—Exchange.

"Farmer Bill" Gets Car For Big Race

"Farmer Bill" Endicott, one of the greatest motor racing drivers the Hoosier state ever produced, will be seen at the wheel of a Schacht car in the second annual 50-mile International Sweepstakes race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway next Memorial Day. The Schacht entry was made by the factory at Cincinnati, Ohio, and Endicott was named as driver because of his previous successes on specially prepared tracks and speedways. Although the Schacht car is not among the largest entered in the 50-mile race, Endicott is inclined to believe that he stands one of the best chances among the field of the fastest cars ever started in any event.

WORLD'S BEST TO START
GREAT FIELD OF RACING AUTOS NAMED FOR 500-MILE RACE.

Experts Believe That a Speed of Eighty Miles Per Hour Will Be Maintained.
Indianapolis, Ind.—Carrying with it more than $50,000 in cash prizes for the winners, the second annual 500-mile International Sweepstakes race will be started at 10 o'clock the morning of Memorial Day, May 30, with twenty-seven speedy racing cars as contenders for the victory. This number entered the race before the closing of the entries at midnight, May 1. Manning the cars are almost all of the famous racing pilots in America, and several who have International reputations for prowess at the wheel. Taken throughout, the field of starters in this long grind is the classiest that ever has been brought together in one contest.
Last year there were more entries, but only the fastest cars have been entered for the second race, and the terrific speed and endurance in the grueling fray were too great for many to tackle again. With about an exception all of the cars this time were among the fastest in the first 100-mile race, which furnished the most spectacular contest ever witnessed in motor racing annals. It is believed that the average speed will be as high as seventy-five miles per hour. The last race brought out an average of 74.4 miles for the five-century distance.
Almost without exception the pilots who are practicing for the big race believe that the new record will equal that established for 200 miles on the road at Santa Monica. Some have ventured the opinion that eighty miles per hour will be necessary for the winning car. Last year the drivers were correct in their estimate of speed, most of them saying that ninety-four or seventy-five miles per hour would be the result.
Despite the fact that the eliminating speed was set at seventy-five miles per hour for one full lap of the track, most of the motors which have been specially built for the race carry from 100 to 120 miles per hour beneath their bonnets. The great speed capacity is provided because the requirements of the race may make it necessary to be in at the top and have sufficient power must be held in reserve so that the motors will not be strained in maintaining an average of about eighty miles.
There is hardly a pilot named for the race who has not a national, and in many cases an international, reputation. The list in part shows: "Wild Boy" Burman, the speed king; Toddy Tetzel, winner of the Santa Monica race; Caleb Bragg, the millionaire who finished second at Santa Monica, and who will team with Tetzel on the Flat entry; Ralph DePalma, whose spectacular driving on mile tracks won him the name of mile-track champion; Harvey Herrick, winner of the 1911 Santa Monica road race, and until Tetzel won the last race, holder of the world's highest race record; and Ralph Mulford, winner of the 1911 Van derbilt Cup race.

The others are just as notable, for there is Louis Dillworth, driver of the 200-horsepower Jay-Rye-Bee car which recently set a new mile track record for five, ten and fifteen miles; Howard Wilcox, holder of the mile straight away stock car record; and Hugh Hughes, the English pilot, who won the Savannah Challenge race in 1911. It is reported that David Bruce Brown, winner of the 1911 Grand Prix race, will be named to drive one of the fast American entries in the race.
Despite the fact that between 80,000 and 90,000 persons saw the last contest, it is said that the crowd this year will be even greater. The advance sale of seats indicates that the crowd from outside of Indianapolis will be fully fifty per cent greater than before. More than forty special trains are to be run to Indianapolis from many far away cities, and six motor club tours will be run to the Speedway, one of them coming from Denver.

TRUCK PATCH.
I read with sorrow in last week's Jeffersonian that Mr. John Drake's market wagon turned over and broke a lot of eggs, about seventy-five, I believe. Now, I want to know what kind of eggs they were—duck's eggs or Drake's eggs?
Speaking of eggs, can any one tell me why there are so many rotten eggs this year? Hannah says only about half the eggs hatch, and the rest are rotten. Some say 'tis because for his hens to set, but they wouldn't. So he fixed a nice box and bored two holes through the bottom; then he filled it with straw and put the eggs in. Then he called the hens up to him and selecting the one that looked good to him he proceeded to stick her feet through the holes in the box and tied her there. I don't believe I ever heard whether she hatched or not.

WHAT YOU OWE THE WORLD.

We heard a young man remark last week that, "The world owes me a living." It is hoped for that young man's good that he'll get the notion out of his head. It's a mistake, a grave mistake. He never entertained a more foolish idea nor one which will bring him a smaller measure of respect. The world owes the young man nothing; but instead he owes the world and society an active, noble manhood, a steady honest energy which will enable him to associate with decent men and women in a true manliness of character that will make his friendship valuable and his presence and companionship desired. This young man should contribute to society's happiness and welfare the grace which comes through study, toil and honest thought.

CITY PEOPLE IN THE COUNTRY.

A good question to ask a city person when he is thinking of locating in the country—before you encourage him to come—is this: "Will you consider yourself a resident of this community and take part in the progressive movements for the benefit of the town?"

City people, as a rule, come to the country for the purpose of enjoying the fresh country air, away from the city's dust, dirt and smoke, and to live in God's all-out-doors, where the trees and flowers are lovely and where the birds "make music all the day," and many of them forget all about their neighbors who are trying to boost the community. In the city a man may not know his next door neighbor, but in the country it is different. We have a higher and better aim in life—that of not only living for self, but for our brother, as well.

It is very noticeable that some city people come to a country community and never show themselves at a public gathering of any kind. They could, possibly, give some reason for not doing so, but surely not a good reason. A community that is not worth your assistance and co-operation is not worth living in. And when you help to build up your own community, you are adding to the value of your own property, if you have any, and while this is the smallest reason for taking part in the activities of the people, still it ought to be the means of bringing some people to light, where they can help their fellows.

LEADING DEMOCRATS ARE AMUSING.

The political situation in Kentucky is getting into a bad state of affairs—especially on the Democratic side of the fence. The leaders in the affairs of the party are becoming themselves like babies; it would be to laugh, if it were not for the fact that they are disrupting the party just at a time when it is in need here and with the best opportunity of a lifetime to win in the Presidential race.

"Marse Henri" Watterson, a leader of political affairs in the nation and respected in what he says by everybody everywhere, and the Louisville "gang"—as some style it—are fighting what they call the "Haly, Beckham Millionaire Club," and this is done simply because these parties desire to control the party in Kentucky. Both sides charge "machine rule" and both are right. Both sides claim, "Let the people rule," when they are not thinking of the people's rights at all.

The funniest thing about all this "fuss" is the fact that each side thinks it is tooling the people, when in fact the people are becoming disgusted.

Even some of our congressmen write from Washington, telling "what I want to be done," and charging that the Governor of the State doesn't know what he is talking about. When we were boys at school we used to hear some of the same kind of talk.

Both sides are right when they say "let the people rule," but they have no intention of letting the people rule. It is about time the people were taking a hand in the light and making it a three-handed affair—Louisville and Frankfort vs. The People. And may the good Lord have mercy on the two "gangs," if this is done.

BE SURE TO GET WHAT YOU PAY FOR.

We fear at times that many of our subscribers do not get their money's worth in The Jeffersonian from the fact that they do not read everything that is in the paper. In this age of rush and rush, so many people do not stop to think and ponder over the better things of life. We did people that go through life with only one aim—and that to make money for themselves.

People who have a large view of life, those that think not only of themselves, but of others, will be interested in a newspaper, especially if it is a home or county paper. We have heard people ask questions about things that have occurred, after full particulars had been given in the newspaper that they were taking and paying their hard-earned cash for. Some times a notice of a marriage, a funeral, church notice, a celebration, or something of that kind, will be announced in the home paper, and people will say after it is all over—"well, I did not know of it." Perhaps some merchant will advertise something that these people have been wanting, and they have heard to say that they did not know Mr. So and So carried that in stock, and waste a half a day looking for what they want at other places. You ask, why is this? It is simply because there are a large number of people who do not take the proper interest in the affairs of life. They are selfish; they think of themselves only. They should be for a paper "just to help the editor out" in his good work, and their interest stops there.

We write the above with the hope that it may call your attention to the fact that there are many things published in The Jeffersonian from time to time that should be read and not passed over unnoticed. Read everything in the paper—ads. and all that's in it. You can't read everything out, and that's what you pay for.

We publish nothing that is not of interest to everybody in Jefferson county. Your home paper is quite different from the city daily of course, you can not read everything in them. In the first place, you are not interested in one-third of the things published in city papers, and in the second place you would have to take a day off to read everything in them. But in your home weekly it is different. The Jeffersonian is only six columns, eight pages, and everything printed is of a local nature. If you have any interest at all in home affairs you want to know what is going on in your home country. You will find this in no other paper as in complete form as you will find it in this paper. Therefore, we urge you to read everything—get your money's worth. Hundreds of people in Jefferson county are helping us to get out one of the best county papers in the state. Show your appreciation by not only subscribing for this paper, but by reading everything that is published.

Escapes An Awful Fate.

A thousand tongues could not express the gratitude of Mrs. J. E. Cox, of Joliet, Ill., for her wonderful deliverance from an awful fate. "Typhoid pneumonia had left me with a dreadful cough," she writes. "Sometimes I had such awful coughing spells I thought I would die. I tried to get help from my doctor's treatment and other medicines till I used Dr. King's New Discovery. But I owe my life to this wonderful remedy for I scarcely coughed at all now." Quick and safe, it's the most reliable of all thin and long medicines. Every bottle guaranteed, 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free at all druggists.

Jefferson And Spencer Delegation
Organized—Prof. Otho Perkins, Chairman.

Bowling Green, May 7, 1912.—The Jefferson and Spencer delegation of the Western Kentucky State Normal met in the county assembly room of the new auditorium on Tuesday afternoon to discuss "Parental Cooperation in Schools." Great interest has been manifested in these meetings and we urge each member to be present at each meeting, and help discuss these important subjects.

Mr. Otho Perkins, of Jefferson county, was elected chairman of the meetings and Miss Mayne Paris, of Spencer county, secretary. These meetings are well attended and the subjects all discussed by the members.

We would like to see many more of Jefferson and Spencer county teachers here to take part in these discussions as well as to enjoy the association and training that lives in this institution.

There are two most interesting and instructive features furnished in connection with our school work here, but those of you who have never attended a Normal, cannot realize how much help the Normal school is to us when we go back in the fall to our rural schools. So, wake up and be here for the summer term, which promises to be the best in the school's history. President Cherry receives letters every day asking for Normal trained teachers to take positions in the rural schools. There are now about twelve hundred students receiving instructions from the Western Kentucky State Normal, and more coming in each day. We are hoping that this year will be the best the school has ever experienced; it has already broken the record in attendance, for which we are very proud, and the summer term is to come. Some of the students who enjoy out-door life, are in tents on the school grounds. Anyone desiring to do this will be permitted to do so. There is excellent board in private homes for any who do not care to use tents.

Let us see many more now for the summer term—to take advantage of these golden opportunities. The trip to the Mammoth Cave will be one of the many pleasant excursions offered. Come and bring your friends.—A Jefferson County Student of the W. K. S. N. S.

"Clean Up the Bowels and Keep Them Clean"

There are many remedies to be had for constipation, but the difficulty is to procure one that acts without violence.

It does not perform by force what should be accomplished by persuasion is Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets. After using them, Mr. N. A. Waddell, 315 S. Washington, St. Waco, Tex., says: "I cannot tell my friends how much my life I have been troubled with constipation, and I tried many remedies, all of which seemed to cause pain without giving relief. I finally tried Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets and found them excellent. Their action is pleasant and mild, and their chocolate taste makes it easy to take. I am more than glad to recommend them."

"Clean up the bowels and keep them clean," is the advice of all physicians, because they realize the danger resulting from habitual constipation. Do not delay too long, but begin proper curative measures. Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are a new remedy for this old complaint, and a great improvement over the cathartics you have been using in the past. They take to "like a charm" and work like a charm. A trial will convince you. Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are sold by all druggists, at 25 cents a box containing 25 doses. If not found satisfactory after trial, return the box to your druggist and he will return your money. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

FIRE ENGINE

Does the Work Well at Middletown.

Demonstration Friday Night Pleased Citizens of Town—Insurance Rates Reduced.

A large number of citizens of Middletown and surrounding country came out Friday night to witness the new American LaFrance fire engine recently purchased by the people of Middletown. A house was built of old lumber, boxes, etc., and the creek near the interurban station at Middletown, with plenty of kerosene and gasoline to help it burn when the torch was applied. Promptly at 8 o'clock the fire was started and the alarm given by the ringing of the church bell, and headed by "Chief" Gaines, cashier of the Middletown bank, the fire crew pulled the engine out of the blacksmith shop three blocks away and made a "mad rush" for the fire, which had gained a strong headway.

In less time than it takes to tell it the "boys" were there pouring the chemical fluid upon the blaze, with Capt. Bender of No. 12 Engine Company, Louisville, in the lead. From the time the alarm was given until the entire forty-five gallons of chemicals had been used upon the fire only thirteen minutes' time had been consumed. But the fire was not extinguished. What could be done to save the reputation of the engine? In just five minutes' time the boys recharged the engine and in less time than that the fire was no more.

The people were pleased with the work of the new engine, and are to be congratulated for their public spirit in securing an instrument that in time to come will save thousands of dollars' worth of property. The engine cost the citizens of the town only $400. The town will immediately organize a fire company and establish headquarters.

The Jeffersonian understands that the fire insurance rates at Middletown will be reduced twenty percent on account of having fire protection.

Anchorage On Hand.

Headed by fire chief Strauss the Anchorage fire department came over with its hand pump and hose, some hook and ladder truck. After the fire was extinguished by the Middletown engine the boys from Anchorage demonstrated to the crowd how well they could fight fire. The hand water pump was put down near the creek and a stream of water was thrown sixty or seventy feet in the air. The hook and ladder truck was then taken around to the Masonic Hall, where the men had a little fun climbing to the top of the building on the fire ladders.

Jeffersonstown Committee.

Riding in the handsome automobile of Mr. J. C. Bruce the committee from the Jeffersonstown Commercial Club, composed of Messrs. J. C. Bruce, J. C. Buechel, W. C. Alcock, W. J. Semolina and Geo. Bridwell, made a trip to Middletown and witnessed the work of the engine. The committee was named for the purpose of inspecting the engine and watching the demonstration, in order that the club here may go to work on the proposition in the event that the committee reports favorably at the meeting of the club here tomorrow night. It is said the members of the committee were pleased with the work of the new engine at Middletown and will suggest that the Commercial Club take up the question of purchasing one at once.

MOTHERS' DAY

And Twenty-Ninth Anniversary

Celebrated Sunday by Peniel Sunday School.

On last Sunday afternoon "Mothers' Day" and the twenty-ninth anniversary of the organization of Peniel Union Sunday-school, near Damps Point on the Taylorsville road, were celebrated. Mr. Edw. F. Weinstein, who organized the school twenty-nine years ago and who has done a great work in that community, is still the faithful superintendent of the Sunday school and presided at the meeting Sunday afternoon.

The lovely little church building was profusely decorated with flowers of every description, and presented a beautiful picture. Mr. Geo. Weinstein read the Scripture lesson, and prayed for Mr. Edw. Weinstein and songs by the congregation, little Dorris Wallace in a very creditable manner gave the welcome address, entitled "Welcome Mothers." Little Arthur Drescher spoke on the anniversary of the Sunday school.

Rev. Henry Lenz and Dr. T. M. Hawes delivered the principal addresses of the day and spoke feelingly of the occasion and of the mothers. A feature of the exercises was the singing of a male chorus, from Louisville, which was composed of Rev. Henry Lenz, Albert Ellinger, Chris. Mayer, Wm. Mayer, Geo. Stitz, and Messrs. Ott. Everyone present was given a carnation in honor of "mother," and all enjoyed the occasion to the fullest extent.

OBITUARY.

Obituaries published in this column are charged for at the rate of 5 cents per line, eight words to the line. In sending article for publication, send the words and divide by eight and send remittance with request for publishing.

We, as members of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society at Jeffersonstown, were called upon to mourn the death of one of our most faithful members, when God in His all wise providence said to Mrs. Francis R. Tucker, "Come up higher," on the 19th of March 1912. She had for a number of years been identified with the Missionary Society as a life member, and we realize that that though gone from us she lives, and her Christian life is a living memorial that death had not the power to efface. She suffered long, but with heroic courage and trust in Him who is touched with the feeling of our infirmities, she was able to say, "Thy will be done." The summons came and she answered it peacefully as the faint light shadows were falling. She slept and awoke to find herself at the dawning of a new, never ending day, and before the presence of the King whose loyal subject she had been for many years. There shall be no mourning there, neither sorrows or crying, for the former things have passed away.

We, therefore, offer the following resolutions:

1.—That in the death of Sister Tucker we have lost a faithful member.

2.—That we submit to the will of Him who knoweth best.

3.—That we tender our sympathy to the family of our deceased sister.

4.—That a copy of these resolutions be recorded on our minutes, a copy sent the family and one to The Jeffersonian.

they would be here."

"Yet you haven't made the whites in Can't believe that," said Murrell, with a slight smile. "Well, how about the girl, Tom?" asked Murrell at length. "Listen to me, Tom. I'll take her away, and Belle Plam is yours—land, stock and niggers!" said Murrell, and Ware shifted and twisted in his seat.

"Do you want the land and the niggers? I reckon you'll have to take them whether you want them or not, for I'm going to have the girl."

CHAPTER XIII.

Bob Yancy Finds Himself.

Mr. Yancy awoke from a long dreamless sleep; heavy-lidded eyes sid open. For a moment he struggled with the odds and ends of memory, then he recalled the fight at the tavern, the sudden murderous attack, the fierce blows, the blood, the knife thrust which had ended the struggle. Therefore, the bandages that now swathed his head and shoulders; therefore, the fact that he should be up and doing—for where was Hannibal?

Suddenly a shadow fell obliquely across the foot of the narrow bed, and Cavendish, leaning his long body somewhat, thrust his head in at the opening. He found himself looking into a pair of eyes that for the first time many a long day had the light of consciousness.

"How are you, stranger?" he demanded, in a soft drawl.

"Where am I?" The words were a whisper on Yancy's bearded lips.

"Well, sir, you are in the Tennessee river for certain. Polly! you just step here."

But Polly had heard Cavendish speak, and the murmur of Yancy's voice in reply. Now her head appeared beside her husband's.

"La, you are some better, ain't you, sir?" she cried, smiling down on him. "It's been right smart of a spell, too; yes, sir, you had like you was dead, and not for a matter of hours either—but days."

"How long?"

"Well, high on to three weeks."

"They say Yancy's eyes widen with a look of dumb horror."

"And you don't know nothing about my nitty?" Yancy ain't seen or heard of him, ma'am?" faltered Yancy.

Polly shook her head regretfully. "Ten or thereabouts, ma'am. He were a heap of comfort to me—and the whisper on Yancy's lips was wondrously tender and gentle. He closed his eyes and presently, lulled by the soft ripple that bore them company, fell into a restful sleep.

The rift drifted on into the day's heat, and when at last Yancy awoke, it was to find Henry and Keppel seated beside him, each solacing him with a small moist hand. Mr. Cavendish appeared, bringing Yancy's breakfast. In her wake came Conale with the baby, and the three little brothers who were to be accorded the cherished privilege of seeing the poor gentleman eat. Cavendish presented himself at the opening that did duty as a door.

"This looks like bein' alive, stranger," he commented genially. "You ain't told me yo' name yet?" said Yancy.

"It's Cavendish. Richard Keppel Cavendish."

"My name's Yancy—Bob Yancy." Mr. Cavendish exchanged glances with Mrs. Cavendish. By a nod of her dimpled chin the lady seemed to urge some more extended confidence on his part. Chills and Fever seated himself at the foot of Yancy's bed.

"Stranger, what I'm agoin' to tell you, you'll take as bein' said man to man," he began, with the impressive air of one who had a secret of great moment to impart. "Ever hear tell of lords?"

"No." Yancy was quick to notice the look of disappointment on the faces of his new friends.

"You ain't heard of royalty?" and Cavendish fixed the invalid's wandering glance.

"You mean kings?"

"I shore do."

Yancy made a mighty mental effort. "There's them Bible kings—" he ventured at length.

"Them's sacred kings. Are you familiar with all of the profane kings, Mr. Yancy?"

"Well, taking them as they come, them Bible kings seemed to average pretty profane." Yancy was disposed to defend this point.

"You must a heard of the kings of England, Shu, wa'n't you of yo' folks in the war agin' them?"

"I'd plumb forgot, why my daddy fit all through the war!" exclaimed Yancy. The Cavendishes were immensely relieved.

"Now you'll keep still," said Cavendish. "I want Mr. Yancy should get the straight of this here! The various orders of royalty are kings, dukes, earls and lords. There is the thron from the top of the heap, but lords ain't no slouch."

"Dick had ought to know, for he's an earl himself," cried Polly exultant.

"Sho, Richard Keppel Cavendish, Earl of Lambeth? That was what he was! Sho!" and some transient feeling of awe stamped itself upon their small faces as they viewed the long and limber figure of their parent.

"These here titles got to the eldest son. He begins by bein' a viscount, and chills and fever. "It was my great grandfather come over here from England. His name was Richard Keppel Cavendish, same as mine."

He lived back yonder on the Carolina coast and went to raise tobacco. I've heard my grandfather tell how he'd heard folks say his father was always blatin' in his licker that he was a heap better than he seemed, and it people only knowed the truth about him they'd respect his name, and mobby treat him better. Well, sir, he married and riz a family; there was my grandfather and a passel of girls—ain't that so the title come to him. He never does a lick of work after that."

"In an orphan man of title now and it's been my dream to take Polly and the children and go back to England and see the king about my title. Don't you reckon he's got the notion the Cavendishes has selected out?"

Mr. Yancy considered this likely. The furious shrieking of a steam-packet's whistle broke in upon them. "It's another of them lawyers, want in' all the river!" said Mr. Cavendish, and led to the steering oar.

A step sounded in the narrow hall. An instant later the door was pushed open, and grateful for any interruption that would serve to take Mr. Saul's attention from himself, the judge abruptly turned his back on the clerk and began to examine the record before him. Insensibly, however, the cold, level tones of the voice that was addressing itself to Mr. Saul quickened the beat of his pulse, the throb of his heart, and struck back through the years to a day from which he reckoned better. He turned slowly, as if in dream.

What he saw was a man verging on sixty, lean and dark, with thin, shaven cheeks of a bluish cast from the jaw, and a strongly aquiline profile. Long, black locks swept the collar of his coat, while his tall, spare figure was habited in sleek broadcloth and spotless linen. For a moment the judge seemed to struggle with doubt, then his face went white and the book slipped from his fingers to the window ledge.

The stranger, his business concluded, swung about on his heel and he quitted the office. Mr. Saul, bending above his desk, was making an entry in one of his ledgers. The judge snuffed to his side.

"Who was that man?" he asked thickly, resting a shaking hand on the clerk's arm.

"That—Oh, that was Colonel Pentreus I was just telling you about."

"Has he always lived here?"

"No; he came into the county about ten years ago, and bought a place called The Oaks."

"Has he a family?" The judge appeared to be having difficulty with his speech.

"Not that anybody knows of. Some say he's a widower, others again say he's an old bachelor; but he don't say nothing. The colonel's got his friends, to be sure, but he don't mix much with the real quality. One of his particular intimates is a gentleman by the name of Murrell."

The judge nodded.

"I've met him," he said briefly. Acting on a sudden impulse, the judge muttered something about returning later, and hastily quitted the office.

In the hall the judge's steps dragged and his head was bowed. He was busy with his memories. Then passion shook him.

"Damn him—may God—for ever damn him!" he cried under his breath, in a fierce whisper.

They finished supper, the dishes were cleared away, and the candles lighted, when the judge produced a mysterious leather-covered case. This he opened, and Mahaffy and Hannibal saw that it held a handsome pair of dueling pistols.

"Where did you get 'em, judge?"

"Oh, ain't they beautiful?" cried Hannibal, gazing about the table in his excitement.

"My dear lad, they were purchased only a few hours ago," said the judge quietly, as he began to load them.

"Norton had ridden down to Belle Plam ostensibly to view certain of those improvements that went so far toward embellishing Tom Ware's estate."

"Do you think Belle Plam is ever going to look as it did, Charley?"—as he remembered it when he were children—"asked Betty."

"Why of course it is, dear, you are doing wonders!"

Ware stalked toward them. Having dined with Betty as recently as the day before, he contented himself with a nod in her direction, his greeting to Norton was a more ambitious undertaking.

"I understand you've a new overseer?"

"Then you understand wrong—Carrington's my guest," said Norton. "He's talking of putting in a crop for himself next season, so he's willing to help me make mine."

"Going to turn farmer, is he?" asked Ware.

"So he says." Norton was extremely disappointed when the planter manifested a disposition to play the host and returned to the house with them, where his presence was such a hardship that Norton shortly took his leave.

Issuing from the lane he turned his face in the direction of home. He was within two miles of Thicket Point when, passing a turn in the road, he found himself confronted by three men. One of them seized his horse by the bit. Norton had not even a riding-whip.

"Now, what do you wish to say to me?" he asked.

"We want your word that you'll keep away from Belle Plam."

"Well, if you won't get it!" responded Norton.

In the name instant one of the men raised his hat and struck the young planter in the back of the neck.

"You cur!" cried Norton, as he wheeled on him.

"Damn him—let him have it!"

It was mid-afternoon of the day following before Betty heard of the attack on Norton. She ordered her horse saddled and was soon out on the river road with a groom in her wake. Betty never drew rein until she reached Thicket Point. As she galloped into the yard Bruce Carrington came from the house.

"How is Mr. Norton?" she asked, extending her hand.

"The doctor says he'll be up and about inside of a week. If you'll wait I'll tell him you are here."

Carrington passed on to his house. He entered the room where Norton lay.

"Miss Malroy is here," he said. "Betty—Betty, hear hear!" cried Charley weakly. "Just toss my clothes into the closet and draw up

There—thank you, Bruce—let her come along in now. And as Carrington quitted the room, Norton drew himself up on the pillows and faced the door. "This is worth several beatings, Betty!" he exclaimed as she appeared.

He bent to kiss the hand she gave him, but groaned with the exertion. Then he looked up into her face and saw her eyes swimming with tears.

"What—tears?" he asked.

"Yes, dear?"

"No." "But you don't try to be!"

"No use in my making any such foolish effort, I'd be doomed to failure."

"Good-by, Charley—I really must go!"

He looked up yearningly into her face, and yielding to a sudden impulse, she stooped and kissed him on the forehead, then she fled from the room.

GOOD ROADS

Badly Needed In Dry Ridge Country.

Fruit Crop Injured By Heavy Rains—Interesting News Letter.

Dry Ridge, May 14.—Dry Ridge is still having plenty of rain. In fact, we had a perfect deluge last Saturday night, followed by a cold dreary Sunday, and like everyone else, we are wishing for some warm dry weather. Scarcely any corn has been planted yet, but out are looking fine. We were promised a splendid fruit crop by the abundance of beautiful bloom, but the cold, wet weather has caused the plums and cherries to fall or rot on the trees, until we fear even the birds will be disappointed.

Praying For Good Roads.

We read in last week's Ink Drops that the long needed repairs on the Taylorsville road have been made, and that our present magistrate had done more for that part of the county than any other had ever thought of. We hope and pray that we may be able to say the same thing this time next year, and if so, our pleasure and gratitude will be beyond measure. I don't want to say too much on the road question, but our need is so great, our want so urgent, I should be glad to call the attention of those in power concerning road building, this way. For outside of some good work done by George S. Cartwright, when he was road overseer about fifteen years ago; the mile of crushed rock road given by our late lamented friend, David McKinley; the good gravel road built from Cane Run to the pike near Fisherville, the contract for which I believe was secured by J. H. Gilliland, and the mile of pike up Brush Run, which we owe to Charlie Wheeler, there has been absolutely no work of a lasting nature done in all this part of the county, within the last thirty years.

I know whereof I speak, for I have been traveling all these roads all those years, and many times have gotten down or out and walked where the mud was too deep. Of course, there is a little work done each year—a mud hole fixed here, a load or two of gravel there and a little drain plowed all along; but what we need and want is some good substantial metal roads like they have from Seatonville on to the city, and in most every other part of the county but this.

BIBLE TALES FOR CHILDREN.

References: Heb., 11th chapter, 1st and 2 verses; Luke, 9th chapter, 41 to 48 verses.

A long time ago most of the people on the earth worshipped idols. An idol is a block of wood, gold or silver made into the shape of a man, a woman, a calf, fish, or some other thing. Then the people thought this idol could make it rain and give them good crops and take care of them, and though they had made it they would pray to it.

There were some people who knew about God and they lived in the kingdoms of Israel and Judah, where was the temple, but the children of Israel got to making and worshipping idols, too. So, the heathen around them would send their soldiers into the kingdom of Israel and take whatever they wanted and carry it home with them.

One day a little girl about twelve years old, or maybe younger, was playing around her home and some soldiers from a heathen country came along and stole her and took her with them to their own country and sold her to be a slave, but she never forgot about God. Her father and mother had taught her the Bible and she had heard of the prophets of Israel and what they could do.

The man who bought her was a leper; he was so sick he could never be cured by any doctor. Only God could cure him and God gave his prophets power to cure; so this little girl told her master of God and of his prophet and begged him to go to see the prophet, as she was certain he would be cured. Was she not a Christian and a witness?

Find the story of this little girl in the Bible and what her master did and what happened to him.

Very truly yours,
VERITAS.
